SKINSALE: You mean a whole battle fleet is coming here? /

THE DOCTOR: Yes, unless we could knock out both scout ship and mother ship. If we could do that they might conclude that this sector of space was too dangerous. /

LEELA: How can we do that?

THE DOCTOR: I don't know. We've nothing here that would stop a Rutan space ship in its tracks
....(continued)

(on to page 29)

(on 1, shot 214)

THE DOCTOR: Rutan ships have a crystalline infra-structure. Shielded of course - but landing on a planet like this they might cut out the energy fields to save power. What we'd need is an amplified carbon-oscillator.

LEELA: What is a - what did you say?

THE DOCTOR: It's like a laser beam but more destructive.

SKINSALE: A laser beam.

LEELA: That is some kind of very powerful light, isn't it Doctor?

THE DOCTOR: Yes, in the very simplest terms...

LEELA: Then why don't we use this?

to the TARDIS.

LEELA: What colour are they?

DOCTOR: Blue. 'Aye though they hunted high and low and hunted everywhere.....

LEELA: What?

He enters the TARDIS.

DOCTOR: The ballad of Flannen
Isle. (HE ENTERS THE TARDIS) Wilfred Gibson. 'Aye, though we hunted high and low, and hunted everywhere, Of the three men's fate we found no trace, Of any kind in any place, But a door ajar, and
